About - At the national level, The AWP Network bridges the gaps between veteran service organizations and public agencies to connect veterans, their families, and caregivers with needed resources. To date, AWP has assisted more than 60,000 veterans, family members and caregivers in 1,200+ counties. On a local level, AWP's five community branches utilize a proven one-size-fits-one Community Integration (CI) Model. This model is a Four-Step Plan to connect, educate, advocate, and collaborate with veterans, their families, caregivers, and communities. These branches work to build relationships with veterans in their community to provide support at every stage of veterans' lives proactively and holistically before a crisis occurs.
